Energy sustainability

When you want to enjoy your home, it is necessary to ensure that the outside does not influence your well-being. That is why we have provided these homes with continuous insulation of the façade that surrounds the building, thus avoiding the loss or increase of temperature inside.

The building has a centralized high-efficiency aerothermal installation (this being a clean, renewable and efficient energy), for the production of domestic hot water (DHW) and heating, with individual consumption meters.

And with a heating emission system through underfloor heating, thereby reducing expenses and helping the environment.

This promotion has an Energy Rating A.
